: 4	ENGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY,
	WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION. An Anglo Chinese Dictionary, published at the
.	Daily Press Office, Hongkong.
	For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have to late years been
- ∜ 7	compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is · .	fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Panti pronunciations are given, the accounts being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography
. · :	displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins es La l a de La la la de la dela de	and vacant spaces which have heretofore charac- terized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast acope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration:— Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely re- quires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherto pub-

EXTRACTS. THE LAST FLY:

With chilly feet and drooping wings . He hangs upon the window pane, And hoursely he his doubt-song sings; He hath a sort of wondow pane. Ontside the earth is robed in white

No condinuide, for cond is high, With prospects dark he must alight While Winter takes him on the fly. The man who said, "Oh, dumb the flies,"

Has got his wish, for he is dumb; But gaspingly in death he cries, "There is no word so sweet as hum." And he who blow all kinds of meat Now murmurs with a dying-tone,

" Though I rotain my corcass sweet, I find myself a poor fly blown." The wind that blow hath made him blue, And cold his skin doth mottle; If nicely corked and wintered through Ho'd be a big blue bottle.

All Summer long, in shining robes, He probes the flowers and mosses; But now, alas! he cannot probe, For froze is his proboscis.

Poor fly, his buzziness is o'er, Alas! his hum is in the dust; His corpse will float on tea no more, Nor pass for cloves in cake, I trust.
